Who we've worked with

Blanket Purchase Agreement

What is it?

Policy

13.003 – Agencies shall use simplified acquisition procedures to the maximum extent practicable for all purchases of supplies or services not exceeding the simplified acquisition threshold.

Blanket Purchase Agreement (BPA) under the Simplified Acquisition Threshold

A blanket purchase agreement (BPA) is a simplified method of filling anticipated repetitive needs for supplies or services by establishing "charge accounts" with qualified sources of supply.

Establishment of BPAs

13.303-2 – Details what needs to be written in the purchase order, such as items or services being bought, quantity, price, delivery instructions, and any special terms or conditions. The purpose of this section is to make sure both the government and the seller are on the same page.

Preparation of BPAs

13.303-3 – The purpose is to make the buying process more efficient and flexible. It saves time for the government and the sellers because there are agreed upon terms and the government can make purchases as needed.

Purchases under BPAs

13.303-5 – Limitation for individual purchases for commercial products and commercial services acquisitions conducted under subpart 13.5 is $7.5 million ($15 million for acquisitions as described in 13.500(c)).
